

Two Men at Prayer

Two men went up to the temple to pray. One, not a conscious hypocrite, thanked God he was orthodox, moral and upright, which he was, no doubt. But the acceptable prayer, said Jesus, was uttered by a man who prayed for himself, confessing his sin.

The main difference between the two men was that one confessed the sins of others; the other confessed his own sin. Did you ever notice that we are general and vague about our own but specific about the sins of other people?

Now or Never

The United States is now the educational center of the world. The emphasis has shifted from Europe as it shifted from Asia centuries ago.

The United States is now the scientific center of the world. We have a pool of top flight scientists equal to that of all the rest of the world combined.

We are the industrial base and organization are greater than those of the rest of the nations combined.

We are the wealth center of the world. Our gold reserve surpasses that of all the earth. Our developed wealth is beyond that of the whole world's achievement.

We are now the health center for mankind. We have more great doctors, hospitals, and health facilities than are possessed by the rest of the human race.

We are now the health center for mankind. We have more dynamic vitality to be found anywhere.

Southern Baptists have the largest contingent of youth preparing for full-time Christian service to be found on the earth.

IF AMERICA FAILS, humanity is betrayed for centuries. What the United States does in the next five years will determine the kind of world we shall have for five hundred years—if the Lord delays His coming.
